(54) PORTABLE TELEPHONE SET

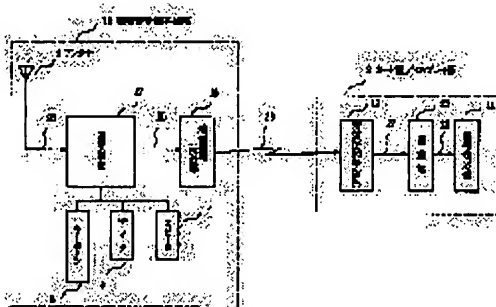

(57)Abstract:

PURPOSE: To surely transfer incoming call information with no restriction of positional relation between the portable telephone set main body and a display section by transferring call reception information in a very weak radio wave to the removable display section from the main body and displaying the information onto the display section.

CONSTITUTION: The telephone set is made up of a portable telephone set main body 12 and a card display section 2.

When a radio wave being a telephone radio channel is received by an antenna 3 and given to a transmission reception section 17 as a telephone radio signal 24, the transmission reception section 17 extracts incoming call information from the telephone radio signal 24 and allows a speaker 4 to inform acoustically the arrival of a call to a carrier of the portable telephone set. Furthermore, the incoming information 25 is used to modulate a radio wave by an incoming call information transfer section 16 and a resulting very weak radio wave 26 is sent to an incoming call information reception section 19. The incoming call information reception section 19 demodulates the received very weak radio wave 26 to extract the incoming call information 27. Then the incoming call information 27 is amplified by a drive section 20. The amplified incoming call information drive signal 28 drives an information display section 11 to allow the incoming call information 25 to be displayed on the information display section 11.
